Investigation of Incident of Cookies With Marijuana Brought to School

Hingham, MA – Police are investigating an incident where a student brought cookies containing marijuana to school and distributed them to several other students.

On January 11, 2018, Officers were sent to the South Shore Educational Collaborative School at 75 Abington St. for a report that five students had consumed cookies at school which contained marijuana. The cookies were allegedly given to them by another student. The students, ages 16-17, were evaluated by a school nurse who believed the students were under the influence of marijuana.

The parents of the five students involved were contacted. None of the teens involved required medical attention but one teen was transported to a hospital by ambulance for another issue. No charges have been filed at this time. The incident remains under investigation.
